2. This class was unusual for the number of students from [REDACTED] 25X1A Their attendance was arranged through the [REDACTED] Records Management Officer, [REDACTED] He hopes that subsequent students may include supervisory personnel as well as clerical staff.

Course Content

3. There was no change in the content of this course, although care was taken to emphasize some of the problems peculiar to DO.

Course Conduct

4. There were no changes in the presentation.

Speakers

25X1A

5. [REDACTED] C/FI Staff, made a very good introductory speech. The students broke in with questions at several points, and what had begun as a rather generalized talk developed into a fairly frank and specific discussion. Both [REDACTED] and the students appeared to be surprised and pleased with the results.

6. All other speakers were our regular representatives.

Course Critiques

7. Please see the course report for CS Records II, to which the combined critiques are attached.

Chief Instructor's Comments

8. Except for the unusual number of [REDACTED] students, as noted in paragraph 2, this class had few surprises. The wide spread of experience was apparent in the kinds of questions which the speakers had to contend with. There was also a good deal of discussion, following the pattern established during [REDACTED] talk. [REDACTED] CI/R&A [REDACTED] commented on the amount of dialogue during his lecture, and his experience was typical of the rest of the course.
